Moshe Ma’oz
Will Syria Survive?

Thursday, March 28
12:30 - 2:00 PM
0142 Holzapfel
Light refreshments will be served
Please RSVP at www.israelstudies.umd.edu

Moshe Ma’oz is a Professor (emeritus) in Hebrew University’s Department of Islamic and Middle Eastern Studies. Originally specializing in the Ottoman period, he has spent much of his career studying modern Syria and has authored a number of books on the subject, including a biography of its late president, Hafez Asad. His most recent book, Muslim Attitudes to Israel: The Ambivalences of Rejection, Antagonism, Tolerance, and Cooperation, was published in 2011.

Professor Ma’oz will discuss the impact of the Arab Spring and recent developments in Syria on Israel’s security and strategic position in the region.

For more information, please contact: israelstudies-contact@umd.edu