It’s BACK….

Israel Academic Film Series – Fall 2011
Presented by The Gildenhorn Institute for Israel Studies

Mark your calendars and join us for the viewing and discussion of these current Israeli films:

Students of all majors and backgrounds are invited.
Each film will be briefly introduced by Prof. Yuval Benziman and a discussion will follow the film.

Date: Tuesday, November 29, 2011
Where: 0142 Holzapfel Hall (Jewish Studies Seminar Room)
Time: 6:45 pm
Food: Kosher food will be provided!!! (Please RSVP)

Upcoming Film Event

Intimate Grammar (2010)

Winner of the Best Feature Film Award at the Jerusalem International Film Festival 2010, Intimate Grammar is an adaptation of David Grossman’s The Book of Intimate Grammar. (110 minutes.)

In Israel in the early 1960s, a new generation is growing up—the militant Israeli the generation that will ensure there will not be another Holocaust. Unfortunately, Aharon, a sensitive boy with a highly developed inner world, does not quite fit the mold. His soul seeks refinement, art, contemplation—everything he is unable to find at home. How could he? For his parents, the Holocaust reduced human existence to war and survival. But Aharon refuses to become like his parents. During three years he does not grow an inch, until he realizes he is partly responsible for this, and so he embarks on a dangerous inner journey: to cross the boundary dividing childhood and adolescence.

For dinner, please RSVP no later than Monday, November 28, 2011

www.israelstudies.umd.edu

For questions, visit www.israelstudies.umd.edu or email: israelstudies-contact@umd.edu